Biosecurity

The planning committee is anticipating another successful event but, given the current status of the PED outbreak throughout the US, we would like to encourage all exhibitors to take appropriate biosecurity measures to help protect their animals and Michigan's commercial swine industry.

Porcine Endemic Diarrhea virus (PEDv) continues to be concern for the Michigan pork industry. The virus was originally identified in Ohio, Indiana and Iowa in April of 2013. PEDv is spread by the oral/fecal route. The spread of PEDv can be related to transportation vehicles and human traffic on and around swine farm. Very small particles of feces or dust particles on clothing and/or boots are enough to infect other sites. Symptoms look much like TGE with pigs vomiting and exhibiting severe diarrhea. Farms with PED outbreaks can expect almost 100% death loss among those pigs 4 weeks or younger.

Older hogs will show signs of the disease but death loss is much lower. There is no treatment for the disease and vaccines are still in the development stage. Currently the industry is depending on vigilant biosecurity to slow the spread of the disease.

The planning committee cannot guarantee the disease won't be present at the show. If your exhibition pigs are showing signs of illness we ask that you forfeit the show and remain at home. We also encourage all exhibitors to take every precaution possible to avoid picking up PEDv and spreading it to pigs left at home. Wash all clothing and disinfect all footwear and show supplies used at the show. Trailers used to haul pigs to and from the show should be washed, disinfected and parked away from other hogs on the farm. We recommend using a 1:32 solution of Clorox bleach (6%) and water to disinfect your transportation vehicles and equipment. Other disinfectants known to kill the PED virus include: Tex-Trol, 1 Stroke Environ, Virkon S. Show attendees should also protect the interior of their vehicle from exposure to PEDv by changing footwear worn around animals prior to entering your vehicle.

Show animals taken back to the farm should be isolated and appropriate biosecurity practices implemented including feeding them at the end of the day and having designated clothing and boots worn only when caring for the isolated pigs. If you will be returning to a site with sows and suckling pigs after attending the event, it is recommended that you have two days of downtime prior to entering your home facility.
